Two Crafts, One Frame

Before software, there was the camera. Four years spent framing shots for Garuda Indonesia and Shopee taught a specific discipline: deciding, deliberately, what enters the frame — and what gets cropped out.

Software engineering turned out to be the same discipline wearing different clothes. An interface is a frame. An API is a frame. Every architecture decision is really a question about what the user sees, and what stays deliberately hidden behind it.

The Twin Frame mark is built from that overlap, literally. Two rounded frames — one standing for the eye (composition, story, what a shot feels like), one for the system (logic, architecture, what a product does) — placed so they must intersect. Where they cross, their colors mix into a third: the Seam, a color that exists nowhere else in the palette and belongs to neither frame alone.

That seam is the actual claim of this studio. Not video skills bolted onto code, not code with nicer screenshots — but the specific, narrow place where a filmmaker's instinct for framing and an engineer's instinct for systems produce something neither discipline gets to alone.

FRAME A — THE EYE

Composition, story, what a shot feels like.
Videography instinct.

FRAME B — THE SYSTEM

Logic, architecture, what a product does.
Engineering instinct.

Brandmark Overview

Menako Studio brandmarks divide into three types:

- 1. Primary Brandmark — the stacked lockup, for hero placements and title contexts.
- 2. Secondary Brandmark — the horizontal lockup, for nav bars and constrained headers.
- 3. Tertiary Brandmark — the icon alone, for favicons and avatars.

1 • Primary
Stacked configuration

2 • Secondary
Horizontal configuration

3 • Tertiary
Icon / favicon

Primary Brandmark

The stacked lockup is the studio's fullest statement: icon centered above the wordmark, generous whitespace on every side.

Frame A — Blue
The Eye. Composition, story, videography instinct. Always the upper-left frame.

Frame B — Peach
The System. Logic, architecture, engineering instinct. Always the lower-right frame, offset to guarantee overlap.

The Seam
Exact geometric intersection of A and B, filled with a third measured color — never approximated, never a gradient or blend-mode effect.

Wordmark
Montserrat Medium, lowercase. menako in ink, studio in muted — weight stays constant, color carries the emphasis.

Secondary Brandmark

For contexts too shallow for the stacked lockup, icon and wordmark resolve to a single baseline.

ADIBWAFI.COM — NAV BAR

Work About Contact

Icon height 24–32px, left-aligned, generous inset from the viewport edge.

CASE-STUDY / REPO BANNER

Centered or left-third placement on a full-bleed cream or white field.

DOCUMENTATION HEADER

Tertiary Brandmark

The Twin Frame icon alone — approved for every context below 24px, and the only mark used for favicons and social avatars.

FAVICON & APP ICON SIZES

| SIZE       | SPEC                                                                   |
|------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 16×16      | Flat cream tile, opaque Blue + Peach, no seam — simplest legible state |
| 32–96px    | Full spec with exact Seam intersection                                 |
| 192–1024px | Full spec; export as full-bleed square, platform applies its own mask  |

Avatars (GitHub, X, LinkedIn): export at 400×400 min., icon centered with 18% padding to survive circular-crop masking.

Secure Area

Let X equal the width of the small radius-gap between Frame A and Frame B's outer edges. No element — text, UI, another logo — may intrude within 1X of the lockup on any side.

■ APPLIES IDENTICALLY TO PRIMARY, SECONDARY AND ICON

For the icon alone, clearspace simplifies to a flat 1/4 of the icon's own width on every side.

Minimum Size

Legibility thresholds for every deployment context.

DIGITAL / WEB UI

| LOCKUP                        | MINIMUM          | NOTE                                                                  |
|-------------------------------|------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Primary (stacked) lockup      | 160px width      | Below this, the wordmark starts competing with the icon for attention |
| Secondary (horizontal) lockup | 22px icon height | Matches typical 24–32px nav-bar logo slots                            |
| Icon (tertiary)               | 16px             | Favicon floor — flat spec only, no Seam intersection                  |

PHYSICAL / PRINT

| APPLICATION                      | MINIMUM    | NOTE                           |
|----------------------------------|------------|--------------------------------|
| Laptop decal (icon only)         | 18mm width | Vinyl cut tolerance floor      |
| Letterhead (secondary lockup)    | 26mm width | Standard header placement      |
| Business card (secondary lockup) | 20mm width | ≥ 1X clearspace from card edge |

Colors

Frame Blue and Peach are used only as the two overlapping shapes in the mark, or as small functional accents. The Seam — the exact measured color of their intersection — is the studio's signature accent and the one color that visually proves the brand's whole thesis.

const seam = blend(frameA, frameB);
// neither color alone

Supergraphic

Small overlapping rounded shapes, scattered and faded to 12% opacity — the same geometric family as the mark, softened into ambient texture. Never uses the Seam color at full strength as a background — that stays reserved for the mark itself.

Incorrect Usage

The Seam only exists as an exact geometric intersection — never approximate it, and never let the mark drift from the rules below.

Don't use mix-blend-mode or a gradient for the Seam

Don't rotate, skew or drop-shadow the mark

Don't swap Frame A and Frame B's positions

Don't recolor the frames outside the palette

Don't violate clearspace with UI elements

Don't alter the wordmark weight or casing

Don't place on low-contrast or busy backgrounds

Don't bring back the old clapperboard or obsidian system
